EMBERS The room was small, but the twilight shadows made it appear larger. An iron bedstead; two tables, one covered with papers, the other with a white cloth; a chair by the door, and on it a mudsplashed pair of trousers and a dirty shirt, with a pair of old slippers, trodden down at the heels, underneath; a black, shiny armchair, its horsehair stuffing protruding in places; a deal chest of drawers--this was all the furniture. No kind of ornament, bare walls, not a spot of colour to relieve the cheerlessness. Yet presently, as one looked, two or three details betrayed something of the individuality of the occupant. The papers on the writing-table were arranged in neat stacks; the shirt on the chair had been carefully folded; the slippers lay side by side; but it was the mechanical precision of habit, and not...
