Further eastward, near the Palace Gateway, is the Chantry House of Nicholas Lord Cantilupe, founded for a college of priests. Formerly there were twenty of these Chantry foundations attached to the Cathedral, each having endowments of lands, or revenues, for the maintenance of one or more priests, to say mass for the souls of the founder and his relations and benefactors sometimes at a particular altar, and oftentimes in little chapels, added to Cathedrals or Parochial Churches. THE PALACE RUIN. This once noble structure, and now interesting ruin, claims peculiar interest as the ancient episcopal residence. The shell of p the magnificent hall was commenced by Hugh the Burgundian, and completed by Hugh de Wells, who built its famous kitchen. When entire, the roof of this great hall was supported by two rows of purbeck marble pillars, portions of the pilasters...
