An engorged liver, of course, signifies that the organ requires active stimulation, especially when the condition is attended by manifestations of auto-toxemia. If any one fact has been more definitely established than another it is that such stimulation should not be brought about by the use of drastic cathartics, for if so, the remedy is frequently worse than the disease in its sinister effects. What is particularly needed is a means of stimulation which will satisfactorily increase the functional activity of the liver, without setting up catharsis or over activity of the bowels. The above needs are well met by Chionia, Chionanthus Virginica. This well-known product exerts a distinctly specific action...
