Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Fourfold Gospel: The Law of the New Kingdom The subject with which this volume begins is Christ s teaching in parables and His object in thus teaching. The subject with which it concludes (or draws towards its conclusion) is Christ s precept to His typical follower: Let him deny himself and take up his cross. There are few Synoptic traditions that are more obscure as to their meaning and origin than these two. An attempt will be made in the following pages to shew that the Fourth Evangelist, who nowhere mentions the word parable, and who nowhere represents Jesus as mentioning the word cross, constantly refers to Christian thoughts about both these terms, and helps us not only to understand why he, the writer, left the terms unmentioned, but also to draw nearer to what we may believe to have been thought about them by our Lord Himself. Mark s Gospel is taken as the starting point for investigation, for three reasons, first, because it has been proved to contain Synoptic tradition in its earliest form, secondly, because Matthew and Luke have largely borrowed from it, and thirdly, for a reason that cannot be quite so briefly expressed. It is, that Mark appears to have been, to a surprising extent, let alone by early editors and scribes. Victor of Antioch, writing not earlier than the fifth century, complains that Mark s is the only Gospel on which he has not been able to find a single continuous commentary.
